Alexej Meschtschanow

Kiev, 1973. Live and work in Berlin

Examines the physical and aesthetic qualities of established social conventions through sculpture and installation. Studying our immediate social environments with an analytic and compassionate eye, he assembles found objects, derelict furniture and archival photography.

His work focuses on the imaginative potential and psychological depths involved in the construction of identities, compulsion toward self realization and the socially driven urge for optimization. His sculptural works interlock two communicative modes, the passive and the active. The end effect of his creative output culminates in figures of poetic melancholy, attempting to break out of the vicious cycles of fordist, totalitarian or fetishist forms of functionalism.

Alexej Meschtschanow

Alexej Meschtschanow has exhibited at institutions like the Kunstverein Langenhagen, Magazine4 in Austria, ARhoS Kunstmuseum, Aarhus, Denmark, Kunsthalle of Dresden, the Grassi Museum in Leipzig, or the Centre de la Photographie at Geneva. His work can be found at the Zabłudowicz Collection, London, the Museum Folkwang, Essen, the Philara Collection, Dusseldorf, or the Reiner Collection in Washington among others.
